Profile

Juliette Dassinger, PT, DPT is originally from Morton Grove and has been with Illinois Bone and Joint Institute since 2021 treating patients and working as the assistant facility manager at the Highland Park location. She graduated from A.T. Still University in Mesa, Arizona in 2020.

Juliette's purpose is to inspire others to take control of their physical health and wellbeing. She is driven by helping her patients achieve their goals in the orthopedic setting. She spends her focus on manual therapy, individualized guided exercise and patient education to improve the health and independence of her patients. Her key competencies lie in orthopedics, manual therapy, dry needling, pain management, post surgical rehabilitation, and health and wellness..

Outside of the clinic, Juliette is highly involved in the physical therapy profession as a member of the American Physical Therapy Association and Illinois Physical Therapy Association. By night, Juliette is the show producer of the well known physical therapy podcast PT Pintcast.

When Juliette steps away from the clinic, she enjoys outdoor activities, reading, cooking, and spending time with her family and friends. Juliette is pleased to be working with the IBJI team.
